Hi loves!

Ooooh, the end is in sight for Stan and Kitty! Eeeep! I'm SO close to writing 'The End' on the second book in the duet that I can almost feel it.

Just look at that word count!! Woop!

These two have been a welcome respite for me.

Their story is full of my usual shenanigans because what would a Serena book be without shenanigans? ;) But both of them really helped me through this rut I've been in. Not with writing or this universe. Just, the world, I guess? It's hard out there. I know we're all feeling it.

Embracing nostalgia has been getting me through! I've been watching a ton of content that I enjoyed when I was younger and, funnily enough, when you watch a show at different times of your life, you have a different appreciation/dislike for it. For example, when I watched Cruel Intentions as a kid who was way too young to be watching a movie like that, (lol,) I loved Ryan Phillippe's character—Sebastian. Now, I think he's a pretty asshole who I wouldn't touch with a ten-foot bargepole, hahaha. Toxic, much? It started my love affair with the name Sebastian too. But did you know he was 25 in that movie? How weird is that? Most of the main characters, playing high-school students, were in their twenties. So bizarre.

As a kid, I didn't think much of it. Now I feel the difference in my bones. :P Still, it did kickstart my appreciation for taboo. I really wanted a stepbrother/sistersister romance to start in that movie and was infinitely disappointed.

You should watch this space for that... coughs

Stan and Kitty were like returning to my safe space in a way. I needed a break from mafia once Silenced was released because, after going so deep into the Five Points' universe, a palate cleanser was required. Speaking of, I'm actually working on Cody's edits too and, oooh, boy, isn't he just a longggg drink of water after a drought?!

I'm raring to go with my mafia universe, though. I'm just slower than I used to be. Which is kinda annoying! But it is what it is :)

So much coming up for you guys—I can't wait for you to meet my new heroes. <3

Anyhoo, happy March! Watch this space for a bonus scene next week. ;) Which is perfect timing really as I'm transitioning to a new newsletter provider because far too many people have mentioned how, after signing up, they're receiving no emails. However, it means that if you like seeing my newsletters, you need to watch out for them landing in your spam folder. The transition will take around six weeks. <3 Goodie time! Who doesn't love a BoGo sale? Exclusively through my website, you can snag Filthy and Filthy Truth in audio for only $7! Audiophiles unite! Oh, and before I forget, you should probably check out my Instagram/FB page or I Told You So's column for an update from Star! ;)

Much love and happy reading,

I told you so Pigeon Creek Herald Column.
